Mining District Is Sending Steady Shipments to the Thompson Plant.

There is much mining activity at the Hawthorne district in the Nevada county. More genuine mining is being prosecuted in that section at any time previous in its history. The Mountain King mine, one of the Lucky Boy group, and now being worked under a lease and bond by President Charles Knox of the Montana-Tonopah Mining company, and his associates, has just opened up on the 900-foot level a ledge of six feet of solid galena with the 14-inch vein of native silver. This rich streak will bring the value per ton up to $150. This ledge of ore is in the west drift, while the rest shows four feet of this grade ore.

Knox and his associates have purchased the ten-stamp mill and concentrator plant of J. G. Atchison and Frank Atchison, and will add a cyanide process to the plant. At the present time considerable work is being shipped from the Mountain King to the smelters.

Wash Flat Work.

Quality of the Excelsior Mountain copper company, which is situated about 10 miles south of Hawthorne, at Wash Flat, has driven a tunnel 1200 feet and another tunnel down 1400 feet to the ledge croppings. At this ledge has been cut and shows a ledge of 30 feet. The ore contains silver and copper of a high grade. The company has been developing this property for the past six years with a force of men and have expended a large amount of money to demonstrate that they have a valuable mine.

Creek Near Smelter.

Walter Lake Exploration company has driven a 200-foot tunnel to tap a ledge of rich croppings at Cat Creek. The ore is copper and gold. The Thompson smelter only a few days ago, this company will open the dividend claim.

BECK TUNNEL MINE
IN GOOD CONDITIONEverything Favorable for the Company Coming Back to Earning Division.

The Beck Tunnel shareholders have no reason to feel discouraged as the outlook for this mine is very good at the present time. During the week the ore was encountered in a raise from the 175 foot level of the No. 2 shaft and there is no reason why the mine can not increase its tonnage in the near future. Some time ago a drift was started upon the 175 level of the No. 2 shaft. The object being to get over and into the portion of the company's ground in which the "Uncle Sam" ore is being mined. The drift had covered only a portion of the distance when the above-mentioned was so favorable that Superintendent Perry Fuller decided that it would be advisable to do some work above this level and by raising a distance of about fifty feet some good shipping ore was located.

Ore Body Branched.

As near as can be determined at this time it appears that the ore, which was first opened near the Uncle Sam line, and later followed for several hundred feet in a southeasterly direction, has branched, one section of it extending some distance to the east. It is no doubt the eastern branch of the ore body that was located in the raise a few days ago. Where the ore is now being driven down it carries sufficient values in gold, silver and lead to make it worth about $20 per ton. The Beck tunnel is still quite heavily in debt, but this indebtedness is being gradually cut down and from present indications it may be possible to wipe out the overdraft before many months. With the treasury in better condition the management would no doubt favor a more thorough search for ore from the lower levels of the deep shaft in the north end of the ground or perhaps the development of the property at even greater depths, as the present equipment is good for deeper work.

The development of the Ophobongo mine at a depth of 1000 feet is progressing nicely and this week a crosscut was started for the purpose of connecting with some ore which was opened some time ago during the time that the mine was being worked through the Black Jack shaft. When work was taken up on the 1000 level of the Ophobongo something over a month ago a drift was started toward the south for the purpose of following a well defined fissure which carried a nice bunch of quartz. After following this fissure for a distance of 150 feet Superintendent Samuel Cox decided to discontinue this piece of work temporarily in order that he might drive a crosscut out toward the east where there can be no question as to results, although it will be necessary to do something like 150 feet of work before reaching the ore.

New Work on Seventh.

Another piece of new work will be started next week when a raise will be driven from the 700 level at the point where some gold ore was found a few weeks ago. The development of the ore bodies is going along as usual in that part of the Ophobongo which is above the 700 level and the mine is still shipping at the rate of about four carloads of ore each week.

It is from points above the 700 level that the gold Chain people have been mining the ore recently, but this week a raise was started for the purpose of connecting the ore at greater depths. Superintendent Wetterstrom has located a point where the ore is going down strong from the 700 level and during the week he commenced work in a raise which today has reached a depth of about thirty feet. With this raise it will be possible to get a good line upon the quartz, and the ore body after it leaves the 700, and it will probably be only a short time until work is taken up with a view to getting into the same ore from the next level below.

NATIONAL MINE HAS SPLENDID RECORD

There is no parallel to the National mine. The National mine has a greater dividend record for the amount of operating cost and expense than any other single mine in the known world. It is the rarest of rare mines, where the ore is so rich and high grade as to be carried from its lode in place in the mine to the vaults in charge of specially selected trustworthy and these in turn are under the watchful eye of other responsible connections associated with this great property.

ANNUAL REPORT OF
TENNESSEE COMPANYPrice of Copper Was Felt by Company During the Past Season.

Tennessee Copper's report for 1911 shows gross receipts of $577,937, or approximately $200,000 less than for the preceding year. In 1910 the copper production of this company was 12,500,000 pounds, and in that year the average selling price of the metal was about 12 cents a pound. Last year the metal's average price was about 12 cents a pound, which means a decrease in the company's copper earnings of a quarter of a cent a pound or about $300,000 on a 12,500,000-pound output. In short, the decrease in gross for 1911 is in accordance with the decrease in the average price of copper, which would indicate that the total of other earnings was about the same as in 1910, says the Wall Street Journal.

Tennessee's large expected profits from its acid plant have not yet materialized, but those in closest touch with the company say that eventually this end of the business will be very profitable. Last June the new plant had about reached the stage of being ready for operation, but it was not completed and plant running at full capacity until about three months in 1911 in which the acid plant had anything like a satisfactory try-out. The company received $27,000 as insurance for loss of profits from the interruption of the acid plant's operation, but this by no means represents the entire amount of lost profits. While the acid plant was closed down it was deemed advisable to suspend smelting operations, although the mine was opened and the ore stacked in the stock piles.

It is estimated that on a year's production of the acid plant, which would mean an output of 200,000 tons, Tennessee would earn $500,000. On a 15 per cent copper market earnings from copper produced would total at least $450,000, and from custom ore treated approximately $100,000. Allowing profits of $50,000 from the company's merchandising department, total gross profits would be brought up to $1,100,000, or more than twice gross profits in 1911. While this is looking at the matter of profits from a favorable viewpoint, a conservative estimate of 1912 gross earnings would be not less than $1,000,000, according to those who direct the company's affairs.
